McFarlane Offers Rudder and Elevator Skins for Cessna Aircraft

Baldwin City, Kansas, December 29, 2011 – In addition to the Flap and Aileron skins currently offered for Cessna aircraft, McFarlane now has FAA-PMA approval for the rudder and elevator skins. The new skins are manufactured with the same improvements as the flap and aileron skins, including precision corrugation spacing and shape, plastic coating to prevent scratches before installation, and no pre-drilled holes to misalign. The skins are FAA-PMA direct replacements that are precision machined to the same shape as the OEM skins; no STC or FAA for 337 is required.
